"From a September 12, 2015 article in the Lewistown Sentinel:

There are 535,600 minutes in a year. It takes about 4,240 minutes to read the entire Bible. That leaves us with 531,360 minutes to do whatever else we need to do.

There are 8,760 hours in a year. It takes about 71 hours to read the entire Bible. That leaves us with 8,689 hours to do whatever else we need to do.

There are 365 days in a year. It takes a little under 3 days to read the Bible. That still leaves us with 362 days for whatever else we need to do."
